The growth of Knowledge he rather thinks to resemble the growth of Fruit; however external causes may in some degree co-operate, it is the internal vigour, -mid virtise of tlte tree, that must ripen the juices to tiieirjul maturity. This then, namely, the exciting men to inquire for themselves into subjects worthy of tlmr- contemplation, this tlie Author declares to have been his first and principal motive for appearing in. print. Next to that, as he has always been a lover of Letters, he would willingly approve his studies to the liberal and ingenuous. Tie Jias pmticularly named these, in dislinclion to others; because, as hisfiudies were never prosecuted with the leasl regard to lucre, so-they are no way calculated for any lucrative End. Tlte liberal therefore and ingenuous (whom he has mentioned already) are...
