Comstock married Sophia Adelaide, daughter of Frederick P. Nardin, a Frenchman whose father came to this country to keep his sons from having to serve in Napoleons armies. One of these sons is still living, at Vandalia, Mo. , at the advanced age of nearly one hundred years. Rev. O. E. Comstock is the eldest of three children. His sister, Helena A. , now Mrs. Thomas Wheeler, resides in Louisville, Ky. , where his mother is still living; and his brother, William, is a car inspector in Kentucky. Mr. Comstock was educated in the public schools of Louisville, afterward attending the Southern Baptist Theological seminary of that city, but owing to ill health did not complete the course. In 1889 he came South for his health and soon became interested in mission work on Furnace Hill, at the same time being employed...
